Data based on: CBS, Follow-Up of Construction Survey.

1. Because the numbers are rounded, they do not necessarily add up to the totals. The totals in all of the tables are not necessarily the same, due to the rounding in each table.

2. In most building permits, the dwellings are not delineated according to the number of rooms in them. In these cases the number of rooms in each of the building's dwellings is imputed uniformly according to the ratio between the total building area and the number of its dwellings.
